Women in the United States and in many other (1) participate in a growing (2) of sports and games. But until the twentieth century, women did not often participate in sports.

Part of the explanation for this is (3) women simply did not have time. Many women cooked, cleaned, and took care of children. They were (4) busy that they did not have time for sports. A second reason, especially in the late nineteenth century, is that a woman's image at that time was one of frailty, illness, and delicacy. In the Victorian era, people thought that it was unladylike for a woman to be (5) in any sports activity.

There have (6) [①modern world / ②in the views of / ③women in the / ④been changes] and also changes within the world of sports. These changes have allowed many more women to participate in sports. The general view of women has changed substantially since the Victorian era. Women are no (7) considered delicate. People do not think it is unladylike for a woman to compete in sports. Women (8) win in sports activities are highly (9). Many women now take part in sports and games of many different kinds, and enjoy doing so. This development is partly the result of a change in the image of women in the modern world.

(注) frailty: 弱さ the Victorian era: ビクトリア時代 unladylike: 淑女らしくない
